Forever Redwood offers a large selection of "thick-timber" 100% wood tables. Because we mill our own wood, our "Forever" furniture is unique in the marketplace. For example, the tabletop boards on all our standard tables are cut a full two inches by six inches thick. Most outdoor tables are less than an inch thick or at most one-and-a-half inches thick. Today's standard "two-by-six" is actually only one-and-a-half inches thick and five-and-one-quarter inches wide. Our true two-by-six-inch board has 52% more wood. The extra thickness and girth significantly increases the feel, appearance, sturdiness, and durability of our entire line of furniture. Consider the fact that our eight-foot table and bench sets weighs over 240 pounds! All Forever Redwood tables are bolted together with stainless steel bolts and screws for added durability. No nails or glue are used in any of our furniture. Extra long tables, twelve feet and longer, are made with three sets of legs. And, if you don't see a size or design you'd like, don't be bashful—email us and we'll be happy to help make it happen.

We offer many options for you to tailor your set just the way you want it. For instance, our Picnic Tables can have tabletops from 30 to 60 inches wide. If you frequently serve meals using large platters or bowls, your guests might appreciate a little additional space for their plates. Available table lengths are from four to fourteen feet long. Sets can have the benches attached or separate (same cost) or you can order the table only or with chairs. There are other options like squared or rounded corners, umbrella holes, finish options and more to build the table set exactly the way you want it. And, if there is a special detail you don't see that you'd like — just let us know.

Our Heritage Picnic Table line is truly special. We build only a couple dozen sets each year. The Heritage sets have identical dimensions, weight and design details as our Forever Picnic table sets, with only one difference: The Heritage table and bench tops are built with twelve-inch wide boards while the Forever sets use six-inch wide boards. Twelve-inch wide furniture grade lumber (vertical grain lumber, clear or nearly clear of knots) is now rare and costly due to poor forestry practices worldwide. Old-Growth Again is the only company still making these exquisite tables. They are only available in our salvaged Old-Growth Redwood (30-year decay warranty).
